- The PAL-Right is a fully self-contained lanyard system – all components fit conveniently inside one storage pouch.
- The PAL-Right is worn on your hip, and the Purcell connector is attached to the front of your harness.
- You must carefully read and understand the user instructions before using your PAL-Right for the first time.
- The PAL-Right is intended for expert use only (eg by ERT rescue personnel and rope access technicians).
- The PAL-Right is a specialised item of PPE (personal protective equipment).
- The PAL-Right consists of an integrated assembly of high quality components. Each component is manufactured to conform to specific international and local standards.
- The PAL-Right enables the user to have an anchor point up to 15m away from an edge or work position.

European and American standards are recognised in Australia by way of international ISO agreements with Standards Australia including the World Trade organisation code of practice which requires member nations to remove technical barriers to trade.

It is recommended that users wear a rescue harness with certification for both work positioning and fall-arrest applications. The PAL-Right is worn on your hip, and the Purcell connector is attached to the front of your harness.
